On Sept 18 Scots can gift Cameron & Westminster £2.5 TRILLION of their money to spend on improving London's infrastructure

Posted on August 2, 2014

Cameron tries to “McCrone Report” evidence of vast new oil field in Scottish waters.

News of “World's largest oil field” discovered in Scottish waters is being suppressed till Sept 19, claim.

£2.5 TRILLION of Scotland's wealth said to be at stake as Cameron seeks to suppress news of vast new oil reserves until after the referendum.

Cameron goes to Shetland and offers us £46 per year, while he's reportedly busy conspiring to steal £2.5 TRILLION from the Scottish people.

Of course, this theft of £2.5 TRILLION of Scotland's wealth has been condemned by precisely zero Unionists and NO leader of Better Together.

The term "anti-Scottish" loses all meaning when those responsible for theft of £2.5 TRILLION of Scotland's treasure are lauded by BT.

Cameron's Grand Larceny demands a response. Where's the procurator fiscal when you need him?

We are indeed a generous people when more than half of us (Polls say) want to gift a Tory millionaire PM £2.5 TRILLION of our money.

That's ~half a million pounds for every man woman and child in the nation. The bubble of NO just burst.

Make no mistake, the choice we face on 18 Sept now includes, YES to £2.5 TRILLION or NO to that money, NO to free bus passes, NO to free prescriptions, NO to free university education, and NO to free homecare for the elderly.

Many of our people live in poverty. It would be criminal to deny them the remedy within our grasp.

“World’s Largest Oil Field NOT Found – The Mystery Surrounding the Prime Ministers Shetland Visit”

Published in Oil Industry News on Saturday, 2 August 2014

“Speculation is growing in the Oil Industry that there was more to the UK Prime Ministers recent secret visit to Shetland than has been released. The Facebook page of YES Highlands and Islands has released the following article that has gone viral on-line.”

“PLEASE DO NOT SHARE – EMBARGO UNTIL 19/09/14
WORLD’S LARGEST OIL FIELD NOT FOUND

You may remember the Prime Minister came to visit Shetland under the tightest secrecy ever seen in Shetland last week and the national press knew nothing about it. Nor the local press ...

Mr Cameron came to Shetland to say absolutely nothing about anything and allowed the local media 6 minutes of questions. ... Which he did not answer.

Now you are all wondering why the PM made a very rushed, and hugely expensive trip to the Shetland Oils, missing his cabinet meeting, and just making it back to Glasgow for the Games ...

[H]is haste was nothing to do with wanting to see us. He did make one tiny announcement about energy in which Scots could save £46 per annum but he could have put out a press release from No 10 about that ...

As luck would have it, Buster was flying his drone around the West of Shetland oilfields recently when he noticed something strange.

A drilling rig, definitely not on contract to BP, and not near the Clair Field did not suddenly de-man and send all the workers home and they are not on full pay.

Nor did he overhear the rig manager say “Come back in September and don’t speak to any wee ginger cats or your sacked.”

The rig did not discover “sweet oil”, the most highly-prized stuff for turning into petroleum spirit, nor was it in shallower water than the normal 150m some of the other Clair oil is lurking at.

Nor did it find it in quantities so large that “biggest” and “world” could be used in the same sentence.

Mr Cameron did not request the oil companies keep this massive wealth hidden from the Scottish electorate until after the referendum.”

“He would never do that.

Just like Westminster didn’t before the last referendum.

We’re sorry we have absolutely no news for you about the vast oil and gas reserves not found in the Atlantic but when we do hear anything you’ll be the first to know.

We’ll bung a photo up of a drilling rig so you know what they don’t look like when they are not contracted to BP no-where near the Clair Field. (lat. 60.629° long. -2.603°)”
